VOL. XII—NO. 3646. NEW-YORK, MONDAY, JUNE 1, 1863. PRICE THREE CENTS.

THE SIEGE OF VICKSBURG.

Unofficial Dispatches to the 26th of May Received by the Government.

No Material Change in the Condition of Affairs.

A Short Truce Granted the Rebels to Bury their Dead.

REST OF THE RIVER BATTERIES SILENCED

Gen. Grant Prepared to Repel Any Rear Attack.

Immense Success of the Yazoo River Expedition.

Capture of the Rebel Navy-yard at Yazoo City.

Destruction of a Monster Rebel Ram and Three Powerful Steamers.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 31.

Unofficial dispatches were received here to-day from the army of Gen. GRANT, dated on the 26th. They represent that there had been no material change in affairs there since the 25th.

On the evening of that day, (the 25th) Gen. PEMBERTON asked for two and a half hours' truce to bury his dead, which was granted.

There is no truth in the rumored death of Gen. SMITH.

11 P. M.—No official dispatches have been received from Gen. GRANT's army to-day.

THE LATEST CAIRO DISPATCHES.

CAIRO, Sunday, May 31.

The dispatch boat New National, from Young's Point on Tuesday afternoon, has arrived.

The fighting on Monday lasted from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M., when there was a cessation of hostilities to bury the dead.

The battle was renewed on Tuesday morning, but no particulars had reached Young's Point.

But few, if any, batteries had been taken.

Shells from Gen. SHERMAN's siege guns come over into the city, as can be seen from the fleet.

Gen. BANKS' forces had not arrived.

Forty-four hundred prisoners are expected here to-night, and will be sent to Indianapolis.

THE LATEST ST. LOUIS DISPATCHES.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, May 29.

Lt. S. C. SCOTT, the well-known river man, arrived to-night from Young's Point Sunday last. He has been with GRANT's army and saw some of its operations. He says our forces are well prepared to repel any attack in their rear, and were in the finest spirits, and confident of their ability to capture Vicksburg and its garrison.

He says the attack on the fortifications on Friday was not made by the entire line, as was reported, but by a force under Gen. BLAIR, which assaulted the big battery and failed. Wherever the rebels attempted to plant guns they were foiled by our sharpshooters.

Our wounded are brought rapidly to the river at Chickasaw Bayou, where there are sufficient boats to receive them. The City of Memphis has reached Cairo with 450 wounded, and the January was next due.

Our base of supplies on the Yazoo was secure, and reinforcements were arriving as rapidly as required.

Gen. OSTERHAUS and Capt. FOSTER, of the First Wisconsin, are wounded, not dangerously.

Mr. SCOTT heard nothing about the death of Gen. SMITH. There were 4,000 prisoners in camp at Young's Point.

THE LATEST MURFREESBORO DISPATCHES.

MURFREESBORO, Thursday, May 28.

Dispatches from Gen. GRANT, old Memphis, arrived to-day, the tone of which are highly encouraging. The army is in excellent condition, considering the trying ordeal of marches, sieges and battles through which it has lately passed with such brilliant results.

The General says that the city is completely invested; that the enemy, driven from the outer works by storm, are huddled within the inner, with every prospect of being captured en masse.

Our artillery keep battering at the curtain of frowning earthworks above, and it is believed that before many days, if the assault fails, hunger will certainly event to insure the fall of the Mississippi Gibraltar.

Immediately after the occupation of the outer works an assault was made which, though unsuccessful, resulted in no serious loss to us.

While the artillery is engaging the enemy's attention and gradually but surely crumbling his works, the army is enjoying a breathing spell below, and gathering strength to carry the city by storm.

Not many days will pass ere the fate of Vicksburgh will be decided. Dispatches to-day from perfectly reliable sources represent JOHNSTON as in the immediate vicinity of Jackson, receiving heavy reinforcements, that come pouring in from every direction. He is reported to have said that, if the city will hold out fifteen days, he will throw into it 100,000 men. If he is compelled to relinquish every foot hold in his department to effect it.

If the condition of affairs at Vicksburgh is correctly reported, it can't possibly hold out five days. JOHNSTON is evidently straining every nerve to recruit an army sufficient to succor and save their vaunted stronghold.

Every railroad converging to Jackson is busily employed night and day, and every available man within JOHNSTON's reach is being hurried forward. Should he recruit an army in good season, he may well afford GRANT such a force as would compel the raising of the siege. In the meantime, however, he will find that the Federals here not been tardy in strengthening GRANT.

Whether anxiety for the safety of Vicksburgh will induce the withdrawal of enough forces from Tullahoma to justify an early advance of the army of the Cumberland, is just now the topic of conversation in camp.

A LETTER FROM YOUNG'S POINT.

Correspondence of the St. Louis Republican.

YOUNG'S POINT, LA., Saturday, May 23, 1863.

As I write here in the cool of early morning, the sound of our mortars slowly booming on the other side of the stream, reminds me that another day of siege has begun for the humanest city ever blockaded. It is now a city girt with drest new graves in front, our army, inspired by recent successes, secure in the rear.

Will GRANT take Vicksburgh? Decidedly yes. The dangers of his rear, romantic campaign are past. While marching from Grand Gulf to Big Black, by the way of Jackson and Dalton, his progress was brilliant but perilous. A single mistake or disaster might have overwhelmed his army with remediless ruin. But the mistake was not made, the disaster did not come. At Port Gibson, at Raymond, at Jackson, at Champion's Hill, (Midway Hills, or Baker's Creek, the battle has three names,) and at Big Black Bridge, our brave veterans of the West drove the rebels before them like sheep. JOHNSTON retreated northward from Jackson, and has not yet rejoined the Vicksburgh insurgents. PEMBERTON went out from Vicksburgh to capture GRANT, with sixty pieces of artillery—he fled back with three.

Now, how can Vicksburgh fail to fall? The ground in the rear of the town is a vast plateau, cut by a thousand ravines, a great sheet of little hills. On a half circle of hills, about two miles from the heart of the town, are the rebel defences. On an exterior half circle of hills, just as high, lies our army, its artillery occupying just as commanding positions as that of the enemy; while from the Yazoo we can get all the supplies we need.

The seven siege guns which the rebels left at Haines' Bluff, on the 19th, when SHERMAN marched in between that height and the city, are probably by this time turned against the rebels works.

But some say that JOHNSTON is coming up in our rear. He may come now if he chooses. He must come over those same hills, through those same ravines of which I have spoken, and he will find there the gates of death.

THE EXPEDITION UP THE YAZOO.

DISPATCH FROM ADMIRAL PORTER.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 31.

The following telegram was received at the Navy Department to-day:

FLAG-SHIP BLACK HAWK, MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, NEAR VICKSBURGH, May 25, via CAIRO, May 30.

To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of Navy:

SIR: I have the honor to inform you that the expedition under command of Lieut.-Commander WALKER, after taking possession of the forts at Haines' Bluff, was perfectly successful.

Three powerful steamers and a ram were destroyed at Yazoo City. The ram was a monster—210 feet long, 70 feet beam, to be covered with 4-inch iron plates. Also, a fine Navy-yard, with machine-shops of all kinds, saw-mills, blacksmiths'-shops, &c., were burned up.

The property destroyed and captured amounted to over two millions of dollars.

Had the monster ram been finished she would have given us some trouble.

One battery was destroyed at Drury's Bluff.

Our loss on the expedition was one killed and seven wounded. DAVID D. PORTER,

Acting Rear-Admiral,
Commanding Mississippi Squadron.

THE LATEST REBEL REPORTS.

Vicksburgh Still Holding Out on the 26th.

MURFREESBORO, Saturday, May 30.

The Chattanooga Rebel of the 29th has the following:

MOBILE, Thursday, May 28.

Reports from below Vicksburgh state that Gen. BANKS has crossed the Mississippi with his army, at Bayou Sara.

Gen. GRANT sent in a flag of truce yesterday about sick and wounded. The slaughter of the Federals was far greater in the assault upon Vicksburgh than in any battle during the war.

The Mississippian of Tuesday says Saturday's battle at Vicksburgh was the most stubborn of all. (There was no battle on Saturday.—ED. TIMES.)

The Quartermaster at Canton says the Yankee gunboats have left Yazoo City.

RICHMOND, VA., Wednesday, May 27.

A private dispatch from Canton, Miss., says, "All was well yesterday. Vicksburgh holds out bravely."

CINCINNATI, Sunday, May 31.

The Commercial has the following Southern news from rebel sources:

The Appeal of the 29th says "two gunboats have been sunk at Vicksburgh."

Col. GRIERSON's cavalry made another raid from Baton Rouge, capturing and destroying a large rebel camp.

PEMBERTON's Quartermaster has succeeded in running 700 mules out of Vicksburgh, thereby reducing the consumption of corn. The garrison has full rations for 90 days.

The Atlanta, Ga., Commonwealth, of the 26th, notices the arrival of BRAGG'S troops in that city.

DEPARTMENT OF THE CUMBERLAND

A Preamble that needs Pardoning—How Nashville Impresses a Stranger—Secession Softening—Unionism Gaining Strength—Andy Johnson—Parson Brownlow—Vallandigham.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Thursday, May 28, 1863.

One who is in the service of the Government can calculate but slightly on his whereabouts. To obey orders implicitly, and go whither he is sent, is the duty of officer as well as of private—of the soldier and the sailor alike. Your correspondent, during the past eighteen months, has had the honor to render service, in the Army of the Potomac first, in that of the Rappahannock afterward, oscillating like a pendulum between the rivers here named, for a considerable portion of this time. He has advanced toward Richmond some ten miles south of Fredericksburgh. He would have advanced farther, had not the thunder of Stonewall JACKSON's guns, awakening in May last the echoes of the Shenandoah Valley, arrested the onward, and precipitated a retrograde and most unavailing movement.

He has shared in the strange vicissitudes of that Summer campaign—has seen war in all its hideous phases, from the time when our gallant masses fell back slowly from the Rapidan, and more swiftly from Bull Run, till at Antietam they held the bloody field in the attitude of victors. Not victors, however, as they well deserved to be, by the overwhelming defeat of the enemy. That end must come, and auspiciously to the hopes and faith of the brave true hearts, who, through the severest ordeal of trial of and sacrifice, have not faltered a moment in the duty they owe, and are proud to render, to the country they love. This high constancy and courage will secure, sooner or later, to make the right cause triumph.

And this is the Department of the Cumberland—if you will pardon the preamble—and the point from which I write you, the Capital of rebellion-scathed Tennessee. My duty, as an humble servant of the Government, has fixed me here for the present, and I may be able to gather, from time to time, some matters pertaining to the absorbing struggle now going on, that may prove not without interest to some of your multitudinous readers.

But let me not pass Nashville by without saying a word or two about it. It is a city, they say, of 20,000 souls—but to where its wonted inhabitants are all in it, which is not the case at present. In its normal peaceful condition, it were easy to regard it as a place of compelling attraction. Many of its private residences are spacious and even imposing, and not a few exhibit the unmistakable marks of the wealth not only, but of the taste and refinement of their former occupants. The streets, however, are narrow, and the pavements and sidewalks shockingly uneven. One walking at night has need to take special heed to his ways. At present, the city is little more than a military post. The incessant trampling of hoofs and rolling of army wagons has trebly reduced the dust of the streets, not a drop of rain having fallen for upward of two weeks, and the sprinkling process reaching little beyond a few of the more pretentious houses. Clouds of dust, therefore, cover the city like a mantle, and well-nigh suffocate the luckless passer-by. The "infernal" allanthus—to use a favorite epithet of Parson BROWNLOW—blooms in many of the streets and sheds its poisonous effluvium upon the air. The Southerners seem not yet to have discovered that this is the most detestable of trees, and suffer it to flaunt its sickly glories before scores of the stalwartest of their dwellings. If DANTE had located the tree in one of the stories of his Inferno and made the inhaling for years of its noisome odor one of the punishments of his wretched doomed, the conceit would have done no discredit to the poet's ingenuity in inventing tortures. The tree, however, has worshippers far north of the banks of the Cumberland, who cherish it with the pious motive, probably, of having a perpetual memento mori before them, as the death's head was in the olden time.

Judging Nashville from its hotels, its claims to being a fine city rest upon a slight basis. What SAM. JOHNSON said of the nation, on a certain occasion—that it was "ill-kept, ill-killed, ill-dressed, ill-roasted, ill-served"—may stand, with some verbal modifications, as a fair picture of these places of entertainment for man and beast. The rooms are old and the furniture frowzy, and the ventilation poor, and the table scanty, and the attendants black—which, though in some localities a recommendation, is not so in this "contraband" region, where the color too often contrasts with professional and personal untidiness. To pass from the spacious and superbly-kept Gait House of Louisville, Ky., to the most pretentious of the Nashville houses, rejoicing in the name of St. Cloud, is to pass from a higher to a deeply lower state of hotel civilization. The solitary advantage the latter has over the former, is the price per diem, which seems emulous to equal that which prevails in the Capital of C. S. A. Should Nashville chance to come again under rebel rule, its aspirations to reach the full maximum of Confederacy prices will be speedily realized. But this the good right arm of ROSECRANS will be very likely to prevent.

The secesh ladies and city generally are much meaker than they were when the National flag first waved above their housetops. No more insults or indignities; no scornful tossing of the head, or shrinking from the approach of the Union soldier as from contamination; no "spitting out of infernal windows," as BROWNLOW expressed it in a speech here the other day, "on the heads of 'mudsills' passing beneath." The firm, dignified away of ANDY JOHNSON, with the test oath—its alternative being exile beyond our lines—has quieted the rampant, and made the fiercest tame. Order reigns throughout; and if the citizens do not all cordially fraternize with the upholders of the true flag and Government, they at least abstain from all rudeness or discourtesy.

The Union element, too, is strengthening. The League, already numbering hundreds of respected citizens, is enrolling weekly additional staunch members. The Nashville Daily Union and Press are earnest supporters of the Government, and the former particularly is a bold, uncompromising supporter of the Administration. ANDY JOHNSON's influence is potent and pervading; and when his 30,000 troops, now being rapidly raised, shall have taken the field, to wrest East Tennessee from the clutches of its tyrants, the day of the State's full deliverance will be nigh. All things conspire to invest the Union cause here with hope and encouragement.

Parson BROWNLOW is at present on a visit here. Last Sabbath morning I had an opportunity to hear him address an audience from the pulpit of the Methodist Church on College-street, now a post chapel. As I had heard him preach at the North, I was curious to hear him preach here. He arose from a sick bed to fulfill his engagement, and appeared before the expectant assembly looking languid and ill. The church, which is a small, plain box, capable of holding four or five hundred by packing, was densely thronged, largely by United States soldiers and officers. The Parson commenced by saying that he should not undertake to preach a sermon, but simply give a "talk" on matters pertaining to the great interests of the times. The address fully justified the manifesto. He poured upon treason and traitors, and especially those of Tennessee, floods of the fiercest and most unsparing invective. I was pleased to see the hearty response his sentiments and words found in the brave soldiers, who drank in his utterances, and could scarcely restrain, for the day and place, from boisterously expressing their applause. In Tennessee, where the popular ear is less delicately strung than it is with us, and the taste is less fastidious, the blunt, downright, cut-and-thrust Parson is a tower of strength in behalf of the cause he loves.

VALLANDIGHAM—the Parson's antipode—reached here on Sunday evening last, in the cars from Louisville. He was on his way "to his own place," escorted thither by a National guard. An immense crowd, expecting his arrival, hemmed in the depot at which he alighted. His reception was far from a flattering one, and some signs appeared among the soldiers gathered around, promptly checked, however, that personal violence might be shown him. He was not suffered to remain over night in Nashville, but was swiftly borne to Murfreesboro, and thence sent beyond the lines. C. V. S.

REBEL REPORTS FROM TENNESSEE.

Vallandigham Going to Virginia.

MURFREESBORO, Saturday, May 30.

The Chattanooga Rebel says: "Capt. DE MYER, of MORGAN's cavalry, was killed in a skirmish near Readyville, on the 26th."

The Rebel believes the army of the Cumberland is in a weaker condition, to-day, than at any time since the battle of Murfreesboro. It thinks Gen. ROSECRANS has reinforced Gen. GRANT.

The Rebel thinks VALLANDIGHAM's chances of being Governor of Ohio are very fair. With such a man for President of the United States, it says, we could always have peace.

SHELBYVILLE, Thursday, May 28.

VALLANDIGHAM is still here. He will go to Virginia in a few days.

GEN. BURNSIDE'S DEPARTMENT.

Headquarters to be Removed to Hickman Bridge.

The Retaliatory Policy to be Carried Out.

CINCINNATI, Sunday, May 31.

On Thursday next Gen. BURNSIDE will remove the headquarters of the Department of the Ohio to Hickman Bridge, Ky., about ten miles south of Mitchellsville.

Brig.-Gen. N. C. McLEAN has been appointed Provost-Marshal General of the Department of the Ohio, with headquarters at Cincinnati.

A dispatch from BURNSIDE to BRAGG, announcing his determination to hang all the rebel officers in his hands, in case retaliation for the two spies tried and executed in accordance with the usages of war, should be resorted to by the rebel Government, was yesterday conveyed from Murfreesboro, under a flag of truce.

A FIGHT IN VIRGINIA.

Subsequent Defeat of the Rebels with Heavy Loss.

CAPTURE OF THEIR ARTILLERY.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 31.

A telegram was received this afternoon from Gen. STAHL, dated at Fairfax Court-House to-day, in which he says MOSBY, "with 300 men and one howitzer, attacked our train of cars near Catlett's Station yesterday, and the guard having escaped he burned the train. The locomotive is not much damaged. Col. MASON, of the Seventh Michigan, who had the command in the front, hearing the firing, took a portion of his followers and followed in search of the rebels. He encountered them two miles from Greenwich, where they had taken a very strong position. Col. MANN charged the rebels, who replied with grape and canister. But (as the Colonel reports) our men never faltered. They dashed upon the rebels and took their guns. Col. MANN returned at dark to his camp in front, bringing up the captured artillery and all our dead and wounded—four of the former and fifteen of the latter. It was an extremely hot fight. We have (the dispatch says) many prisoners, including Capt. HARRISS, an English officer in the Confederate service, and Lieut. CRAWFORD, who had charge of the artillery. Both of these officers were so severely wounded that they could not be removed, and were paroled. The enemy lost very heavily in killed and wounded. After the enemy were thoroughly dispersed in every direction through the woods, darkness set in and precluded further pursuit. Lieut. BARNES, of our forces, was struck by a grape shot in the thigh. He crossed sabres with the enemy, and fought desperately after he was wounded.

IMPORTANT FROM THE FRONTIER.

Advance of a Portion of Price's Army Across the Arkansas.

Their Defeat by Col. Phillips' Command.

Texans and Indians Advancing from the Southwest.

LEAVENWORTH, Friday, May 29.

Col. PHILLIPS, commanding in the Indian Territory, had a severe fight with a portion of PRICE's army on the 20th.

The enemy crossed the Arkansas River near Fort Gibson. Col. PHILLIPS drove them back. Our loss was thirty killed, and the enemy's was much greater.

The enemy were led by Gens. SCULL, COOPER and McINTOSH. They are now massed in our front, claiming 11,000 men, and considerable artillery. We have only 3,000 and one battery, but are well fortified.

This is evidently the advance of PRICE's main army.

Dispatches from Fort Larned inform us of the approach, from the Southwest, of a large rebel force, Texans and Indians, with the design to intercept the trains en route to New-Mexico.

The guerrillas on the border are becoming more numerous. The National force is inadequate. Gen. BLUNT, however, will make the best possible fight.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, May 30.

A dispatch from Gen. BLUNT to Gen. SCHOFIELD states that the rebels crossed the Arkansas River near Fort Gibson, on the 20th, and attacked Col. PHILLIPS, but were repulsed and driven back across the river. Our loss was 30 killed; the enemy's much greater.

All difficulties between Gens. SCHOFIELD and HUNTER have been reconciled, and Gen. HUNTER resumes command of the Army of the Frontier and leaves for the field at once.

Extensive preparations are being made in St. Louis for the reception of the wounded from Vicksburgh.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 31.

Your correspondent with the Potomac army writes the following this morning:

"Yesterday the enemy made quite a dash on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad at Catlett's Station, capturing and destroying a train of ten cars which had been down to Bealeton with forage for our cavalry. The rebels had artillery with them, for they destroyed the locomotive by putting a shot through the boiler. We have not learned certainly what force this was, though it is believed to be a gang of partisan cavalry roaming through that section of country, and who have two pieces of artillery with them. We are thoroughly prepared to take care of all such parties in that direction.

MISBEHAVIOR BEFORE THE ENEMY.

Lieut. ROBERT HARE, of the One Hundred and Forty-sixth New-York, has been found guilty of misbehavior before the enemy, and sentenced to be dishonorably dismissed from the service, which Gen. HOOKER approves.

SENTENCES OF COURTS-MARTIAL.

Privates REUBEN DAILY, PHILIP MARSHUT and CHAS. MARSHUTON, all of the One Hundred and Forty-sixth New-York volunteers, having severally been found guilty of desertion by a General Court-martial of the Army of the Potomac, are sentenced to be shot on Friday next.

Second Lieut. ROBERT HARE, of the same regiment, for misbehavior before the enemy, is dishonorably dismissed the service.

Capt. ALMAR D. BOSSER, of the Michigan Volunteer infantry, for conduct prejudicial to general order and military discipline, is dismissed from the service.

Second Lieut. JAMES D. BROWN, of the Michigan Volunteers, for similar reasons, will forfeit all pay and allowances that are or may come due to him, and is cashiered.

CAPTURED PROPERTY.

According to an Army order, just issued from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, hereafter all captured property, of whatever description, will be transferred to the department of the Staff to which the property appertains. Contrabands will be, in like manner, transferred to the Provost-Marshal-General. Any officer failing to make prompt and complete returns of the captured property that may fall into his possession, and to transfer the same, or permitting such negligence, will be specially reported to headquarters, with a view to his dismissal from the service with disgrace.

ADDITIONAL.

Surgeon E. A. CLEMENTS has been assigned to duty as Assistant Medical Director; Surgeon J. H. TANNER as Medical Inspector, and Assistant Surgeon WINGATE WARREN as Medical Inspector.

French Reinforcements Going to Mexico.

The Cunard screw steamer Eider, which left Liverpool at about 10½ on the morning of Tuesday, the 19th, and Queenstown on the 20th May, arrived here yesterday.

The steamship Jura passed Cape Race on Friday evening, with advices to the 23d, a telegraphic summary of which is given below.

The news of the captures by the Alabama and Florida on the South American coast had reached England in the following telegram:

PERNAMBUCO, Thursday, April 23.—(By telegraph from Lisbon.)—The Alabama has captured the following vessels near this port: The Rockaway, from Aspinwall for Calcutta; the Charles Hill, from Aspinwall for Montevideo; the Louisa Beck, with a cargo of coals from Cardiff for Ceylon; the Alaska Topsy, and the Lafayette. The Florida captured the barks Henrietta and Conrad, off Pernambuco, and put fifteen of their crews on board the French transport Tremouton, for conveyance to this port.

THE BATTLES IN VIRGINIA.

Views and Comments of the English Press.

At the departure of the Asia from England the result of the fighting in Virginia down to the evening of the 3d May had been received by the Persia, and had created a great sensation, but without any material effect in a commercial sense. The accounts were regarded as indefinite and the next steamer was looked for with much eagerness.

From the London Times.

From the details which have now reached us in the New-York papers it is not difficult to gain a general idea of the course of operations in the terrible battles of Saturday and Sunday, the 2d and 3d of May. Gen. HOOKER's plan seems obvious, and is confessed by all accounts. It seems to have been to engage the attention of the Confederates by crossing the Rappahannock, as before, directly in their front, while the greater part of his army, by a flank movement some fifteen miles up the river, marched round to the Confederate rear, turning their left flank. If this movement had succeeded, Gen. HOOKER's main force would have stood between Gen. LEE and Richmond, and Lee, as HOOKER hoped, would have been compelled to turn round and fight a battle to maintain his own communications with Richmond, while a part of HOOKER's army was behind him, prepared to storm the dreaded Fredericksburgh heights in the rear of a preoccupied enemy. It is dangerous to speculate on what might have happened, but it is obvious that this plan has one characteristic which falls in completely with all we know of HOOKER's character. It is true that if, in the anticipated battle, LEE had been overpowered, the way to Richmond would have been clear from any regular army, and HOOKER might have marched on with no disadvantage but that of leaving the disorganized forces of the enemy in his rear, and threatening his communications. But, on the other hand, if HOOKER were defeated—and no amount of skill or bravery can insure victory—the result must have been his annihilation. LEE's army and two rivers would have been between him and Washington. The New-York TIMES calls this "brilliantly audacious generalship." It is, certainly, audacious. Its brilliancy depended on the success with which it was carried out, and that seems to have been wanting. * * * On Friday some sharp skirmishing took place on HOOKER's left, which rested on the Rappahannock, and brisk attacks were made all along the Federal line from their left to their right, as though LEE's object had been to feel their position, and find out how far it extended to his rear, and a vigorous but unsuccessful attack was made on a Federal battery commanding the plank-road we have described. All this, though only preliminary to the battles on Saturday, is of great importance to the whole course of operations, as it shows that Hooker's position had been frustrated thus early. He had not turned LEE's left flank as he intended. On the contrary, under the cover of skirmishers, the whole Confederate force must have been drawn out of the Fredericksburgh fortifications on that day and was now facing HOOKER's main army. In order to do this, however, as is clear from the result, no sufficient force could have been left to defend the heights against GEN. SEDGWICK's corps, and if a strong force had been under that General's command, LEE's position would have been very critical. As it was, his best chance was evidently to attack HOOKER's army before SEDGWICK's corps could operate successfully on the flank from Fredericksburgh, or establish its communications with HOOKER. This was what he did on Saturday, the 2d. On the afternoon of that day GEN. "Stonewall" JACKSON fell heavily upon the Federal right wing. The German troops at that point gave way in panic, and fled in complete disorder back toward the headquarters at Chancellorsville. This attack was ultimately checked by the firmness of Gen. HOOKER's own corps, led by Gen. SICKLES, who was killed. But, though the victory was not complete, the effect of the attack was to change entirely the position of the Federal line. * * * He was ten miles away from SEDGWICK's corps, and LEE separated the two divisions. The only chance of his success seemed to be that SEDGWICK should be able to operate on LEE's right flank and rear before HOOKER was crushed. We can anticipate no more hopeful things from the Government at Washington than that both wings of the Federal army escaped yesterday's battle. If it should have been unfavorable, we do not wonder at their hesitating to proclaim so great a calamity. If Gen. Hooker is defeated, the last chance of success, at least in Virginia, is gone. The only General who has shown any energies or activity will have been hopelessly beaten. It is clear from the accounts of the battle that the German corps had entered solely for the sake of the bounty money, and were not to be depended upon even in the first attack. What would be the chance of raising a new Army of the Potomac with the only remaining General beaten, his troops demoralized, none but foreigners willing to volunteer, and those heartless at the first assault?

In a subsequent article the Times says:

"It can now be hardly doubted that another great disaster has befallen the Federal armies, and there will be little presumption in saying that this new invasion has proved a failure as well as those which preceded it. A General who, in crossing such intrenchments as the first week of the campaign is little likely to complete the conquest of the Confederate States. It shows how completely HOOKER's army must have been disabled when it was obliged to bury itself within intrenchments while the corps of Sedgwick, on which so much depended, was being destroyed a few miles off. The battle of the 4th relieves the Confederates from all fear of an attack on their right, and allows them to use all their strength against HOOKER, who has now to face the whole Confederate army. A reference to the map shows how completely the Confederates are on the line of Gen. HOOKER's communications with the Potomac. Not only is he on the wrong side of a deep and rapid river, to cross which, in the presence of a pursuing enemy, must be almost ruin, but if it is quite possible that he may be hemmed in, his communications intercepted, and the whole supplies of his army cut off. As for an advance through that difficult country in the face of a powerful enemy flushed by victory, the idea must be abandoned. After three days of unsuccessful fighting the utmost HOOKER can hope for is to be able to repel the attacks on his position, and retire after a time with safety and credit across the river."

From the London Globe.

The reports from America, which we publish today, show that Gen. LEE was not long in deciding upon a mode of meeting Gen. HOOKER's offensive movements. No fewer than three days' fighting are mentioned in the telegrams, and the upshot at the latest moment was still uncertain. * * *

Thus the rival armies were on the 4th both in a highly critical position. Lee, if we may trust the Federal reports, had collected all his army, but the manœuvres of his opponent had placed him between two fires, his line of retreat toward Richmond lying through cross-roads. Gen. HOOKER, according to the same authorities, had succeeded in concentrating his army on the right bank of the Rapidan, in spite of the repeated attacks of his opponent. This is greatly to his credit, and if he had not brought over all his men by the 5th, it is still more to his credit that he held his ground in the face of the whole Confederate force. But HOOKER was fighting with two rivers in his rear, a position in which defeat would be fatal to him and his army. The course pursued by Gen. LEE in throwing himself upon the fragments of HOOKER's right wing, catching them when separated by a difficult stream, was sound; but Lee does not appear to have pushed his attack home, or the resistance he met with must have been very steady and obstinate. At the same time it is marvelous how, placed between two fires, LEE has been able to maintain himself in a position from which there is no line of retreat upon Richmond, except by cross roads.

The Globe, in a subsequent article, sees no reason to doubt that on the 4th of May HOOKER had been thrust back on the Rappahannock, and forced into a confined and closely wooded district which, if it offered obstacles to an attacking force, deprived the defenders of all freedom of movement. The same journal thinks it is possible that by rapid and decisive movements, and a superiority of numbers in point of contact, HOOKER may have been cut off from Washington and Aquia Creek. He lost the initiative on the 1st of May when he had all his army in hand, and from that time to the 4th had not recovered the lost advantage.

From the London Daily News.

The news from the army of Gen. HOOKER is not only interesting but important. Contrary to some loud predictions made in this country, the North has once more conclusively shown that it is determined to persevere in its enterprise; and it is clear that notwithstanding any number of partial reverses, the Northern armies are still ready to fight with a gallantry and perseverance equal to that of any people who ever accepted the arbitrament of the sword. It would be premature to anticipate the ultimate result of the great battle which has just been fought for three days, or perhaps more, near Fredericksburgh; but even if the result be adverse to the North, it is idle to suppose that they will be content to accept it as a conclusive test of the superiority of their adversaries. Since the opening of the war no battles have been fought with more determination; and it is obvious that, as time advances, the still good courage of the North, instead of diminishing, acquires fresh force. * * * It may be that HOOKER was defeated. It may be that, notwithstanding a temporary reverse, he was still prepared to renew the combat. But most certainly neither Hooker nor Lee has suffer a real defeat in the position in which they stood on Monday morning, the 4th of May, without serious consequence. HOOKER's retreat lies across two rivers. On the other hand, LEE, if he fails to hold the railways between Fredericksburgh and Richmond, must retreat by cross roads to that capital. Whoever may be victorious, it is clear that both armies must have suffered very severely. It is impossible to fight during three successive days in the open field without serious loss. In the meantime it must be admitted that Hooker has proved himself an officer of skill and of the most undaunted resolution.

From the Manchester Guardian.

Altogether the balance of probabilities justifies the conclusion that the most recent attempt to march against Richmond has resulted as disastrously as any of those by which it has been preceded. It would be most satisfactory to have some assurance that it is likely to have a more decisive effect than they have exercised, and to bring us within sight of the termination of an aimless and wanton war. Anything that would give this character to Gen. HOOKER's failure is the more desirable because we have no news from other quarters of events visibly tending toward the wished-for end.

The Morning Herald remarks that the reported reinforcements of 20,000 or 30,000 fresh men on the Confederate side would probably convert an indecisive struggle into a complete victory, and drive HOOKER's dispirited troops to the very walls of Washington.

The Daily Telegraph regards the silence of the United States Government as ominous.

OTHER AMERICAN TOPICS.

CHARGES AGAINST OUR PRIZE COURTS.

In the House of Lords, on the 19th,

The Marquis of Clanricarde moved for copies of any reports from our consular or diplomatic agents in North America of the decisions or proceedings of the Prize Courts of the United States. A country which professed to be at peace and on terms of amity with us was acting so contrary to the recognized law of nations, in reference to the seizure of ships engaged in conducting the commerce of the country, that it was absolutely necessary for Her Majesty's Government to take more action in the matter than they had hitherto done. At this moment it was impossible to effect insurances upon vessels trading to the western hemisphere, owing to the constant seizures which were being made by the United States cruisers. A vessel was seized, her cargo, worth probably £150,000, was locked up, and if the owners applied to the Government for redress, they were simply told that their case had been referred to Lord LYONS. If there was any hope that the present state of things would soon pass away, or that the United States would evince a greater desire to respect the recognized law of nations, he should wish the Government to make every allowance, but these seizures had now gone on for a considerable time, and he saw no prospect of a speedy and satisfactory state of affairs arising unless the steps taken by Her Majesty's Government were of a more energetic and decisive character. The noble Marquis referred to the seizure of the Letunia, the Adela, the Springbok, the Dolphin and the Peterhoff, and urged that in each case the capture was clearly illegal, and contrary to international law. He also complained of the course of procedure adopted in the American Prize Courts.

Earl RUSSELL said his noble friend had made a speech containing very grave charges against the American Government and Prize Courts. He had brought, in fact, a charge that the American Government and Courts had set aside the whole international law of the world; that they had given orders inconsistent with international law, and that they had decided upon interrupting British commerce as far as they could. Now, so far from denying the law of nations, Mr. Seward in all his communications had [illegible] and had said over and over again that there must be a certain and legal cause of capture before a ship was taken. Admiral MILNE had been instructed to send a ship or ships-of-war to the neighborhood of Matamoras, in order that British vessels might be protected from unjustifiable seizure. The port of Matamoras was crowded with vessels engaged in commerce, so that it would not appear that the proceedings of the United States cruisers could have had any effect in deterring those who were engaged in legitimate commerce from carrying on their ordinary business. He had referred to the law officers of the Crown, almost every case in which these had been a complaint, and they reported that there was no rational ground of objection. As to the decisions of the prize courts of the United States, they were bound to believe that as the knowledge possessed by these courts of international law was very great, so their impartiality and their wish to do justice must be for the present unquestioned. There could be no doubt that many outside halls for appeal were unfortunately engaged in breaking the blockade, and he was afraid that the moment one of them was seized, her owners at once made their appearance at the Foreign Office, and, with all the zeal of injured innocence, demanded redress. Referring to the case of the Alabama, the noble Earl denied that that vessel had been fitted out with the connivance of the British Government, and said that there was no wish on the part of this country to interfere unfairly in the contest now going on.

The Earl of Derby concurred with the remarks which had fallen from Earl RUSSELL, and thought we ought not either publicly or hastily to impute to the American Courts that they deliberately, and contrary to law and justice, set aside the law of nations. We might, also, to make every allowance for the natural precaution the Americans must feel at seeing so large a portion of the commerce of this and other countries carried on, notwithstanding the blockade, to the Confederate ports.

After some remarks from Lord CRANWORTH, the motion was withdrawn.

THE REBEL COTTON LOAN.

From the London Times (City Article.)

In foreign securities the chief feature has been a rebound of 2 per cent in the Confederate Loan, which, on the news by the Persia, has advanced to per to 1 per cent, premium—the fact of the Washington Government having suppressed the result of the last day's fighting in Virginia being considered very significant, as hitherto there has always been an effort to hurry forward favorable accounts by each steamer, even when they have consisted merely of the most untrustworthy rumors. In other respects there has been little alteration.

LETTER FROM PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

HIS RESPONSE TO THE ADDRESS OF THE EMANCIPATION SOCIETY.

The Chairman of the Emancipation Society had received, through the American Minister, the following reply on behalf of President LINCOLN to an address which was adopted at a meeting held in London, on January 29:

To the Citizens of London who were convened in Exeter Hall on the 29th of January last:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, April 25, 1863.

The proceedings of a meeting of British subjects, citizens of London, in Exeter Hall, on the 29th of January last, which were transmitted to the undersigned, have, in compliance with a request contained therein, been laid before the President of the United States.

It would have been most gratifying to the President if the insurrection which is existing in the United States could have been confined within such bounds as to prevent it from disturbing the prosperity or otherwise engaging the attention of friendly nations. Fully convinced that any State which suffers itself to become dependent on the aid or even the sympathy of a foreign Power is equally unwise and unfit to live, the President has been especially careful to refrain from making any appeal to friendly States, and even from seeming to attempt to influence their opinions upon the merits of the present conflict further than has appeared to be necessary to avert ill-considered and wrongful interventions. At the same time the President has neither questioned the right of other nations and communities to form and express their opinions concerning the results of the questions raised by the insurrection and the policy which the Government has adopted in suppressing it, nor has he complained of the manner in which that right has been exercised. On the contrary, he believes that the ultimate and beneficial judgment of mankind upon all such questions is entitled to universal respect and acquiescence.

Circumstances which neither this Government nor that of Great Britain created or could control have rendered it unavoidable that the origin, character, tendency and objects of the insurrection should be discussed in that country with scarcely less freedom and earnestness than in our own. The results of that discussion, if it shall continue to be conducted in a fair and impartial spirit, may be taken as foreshadowing to some degree the ultimate judgment of mankind. It is, therefore, with sincere satisfaction that the President learns from the proceedings now under consideration that a large, respectable and intelligent portion of the British people have on unprompted investigation arrived at the conclusion that the existing rebellion violates the principles of political justice, and that they protest against it as a wrong to the human race because it seeks to displace a Government which is based on the rights of man, to make room for the establishment of another which rests upon human bondage as its cornerstone.

The President would not do justice to his habitual sentiments if he were to omit to express also the satisfaction with which he has found that, in all cases those who are most just in their sentiments toward the United States, are also the most earnest in their desire for the preservation of international peace and friendship. This circumstance supplies to the Government a new motive for adhering to its determined policy of peace, justice and friendship toward all nations, and especially toward Great Britain. I have the honor to be, your very obedient servant,

(Signed,) WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

Affairs in Poland.

The telegrams continue to report that the insurrection is increasing in various directions. Between the 8th and 10th of May, an insurrection broke out at five different points of Volhynia. The insurgents confined in Galacia had all refused to avail themselves of the amnesty, in spite of the solicitations of the Russian agents. The insurrection had broken out in four districts of Podolia. The country remains quiet. The insurgent corps have made their appearance in the districts of Wladmir and Luck.

The whole of Ukrania is in a state of insurrection, with the exception of the districts of Czerkask and Czechryn, where the nobility are the most favorable to Russia. An insurrectionary proclamation has been issued, recognizing the rights of the Russian nationalities.

A provisional insurgent Chief has been proclaimed in the Ukraine. The Provincial Revolutionary Committee for Luthiania has published a reply to the Imperial ukase, granting an amnesty, which says: "As the object of the insurrection is not to obtain concessions from the Emperor, but to establish the independence of the whole of Poland within the frontiers which existed before its partition, the national struggle shall continue until the last Muscovite soldier has been driven from these Polish territories, or till the last Polish army has ceased to fight.

THE NEWS BY THE JURA.

CAPE RACE, Friday, May 22.

The steamship Jura, from Liverpool May 21, off Greenacastle (below Londonderry,) May 22, en route to Quebec, was boarded by the Press yacht, off this point, at 5 P. M. to-day.

Her advices are five days later.

The steamship Glasgow, from New-York, arrived at Queenstown on the 21st, and reached Liverpool on the following day.

The steamer Saxonia did not leave Southampton on the 20th, for New-York, owing to some damage to her machinery. The Hammonia was expected there on the 22d from Hamburg, and would take the place of the Saxonia.

The absence of later American news from that received by the Persia, caused a feeling of suspense, and encouraged rumors, but those which were so prevalent a day or two previous to the departure of the Jura, in regard to an armistice, and the surrender of Gen. Hooker's army, had in a measure subsided.

The Times says in such a contingency the joint summer of peace.

The Cork Examiner contains correspondence from various parts of Ireland, which leaves scarcely any doubt that recruiting for the Northern army is attempted to be carried on on an extensive scale. It appears that Mitchelstown, Charleville and Fermoy were recently visited by several American officers of military aspect, who publicly offered to give passage to any number of young men willing to proceed to New-York for some purpose, with the certainty of employment on their arrival. The offers were made on several occasions, which obviously discomposed the strangers. But there was nothing illegal in the proposition made, and no prosecution could be taken. Several hundred young men await the sailing of the early steamers, who, beyond all doubt, have engaged to go to America on the terms offered by the American agents.

The Liverpool Mercury publishes another lot of anonymous correspondence in regard to Federal operations in England, in the matter of secret agencies for recruiting, with extensive ramifications by means of agents in all parts, and the free use of money alleged to be in operation.

Lord CLYDE is pronounced almost out of danger.

The race for the Derby was a very close affair. Macaroni only beat Lord Clifden by a short neck, and Rapid Shone and Blue Mantle, third and fourth respectively, were only a length from the winner. Thirty-one horses ran. The stakes were nearly £7,000 sterling. The weather was miserable, and the attendance, consequently, less than usual. The Prince of Wales was present.

FRANCE.

Admiral JURIEN DE LA GRAVIERE, having resigned the naval command in Mexico to Admiral BOSSE, had returned to France, bearing Gen. FORAY's report of operations at Puebla down to April 17, at which date the prospects of French success were stated to be excellent.

Additional French men-of-war have been sent to the Piraeus in consequence of the unsettled state of affairs in Greece.

The International Congress at Paris on the postal question had appointed a Sub-Committee of seven to prepare and accelerate the proceedings. Mr. KASSON, delegate from the United States, is a member of the Committee.

Advices from Chambourg report that considerable reinforcements are being dispatched from there to Mexico.

POLAND.

There is really nothing new as to the insurgents' movements.

The number of insurgents in the Kingdom of Poland is estimated by the Times correspondent as not to exceed 20,000 men, she in Lithuania at under 10,000. The number of small bands containing from 6 to 500 men is about 200.

THE INDIANS IN MINNESOTA.

Standing Buffalo Sent on a Mission to Gov. Dallas—The Indians Anxious for Peace.

From the St. Paul (Minn.) Press, May 23.

We learn that official information has been received of the arrival at Fort Abercrombie, on the 19th inst., of JEZEAN DAUMANIS, a son of the interpreter now at that post. He came from St. Joseph by way of Devil's Lake, leaving Devil's Lake on the 9th inst., where he reports there were encamped about 500 suspected Indians, for about 1,000 warriors, with LITTLE CROW at their head.

They are encamped on the prairie near the timber, and near a peninsula that runs down into the lake on the north side, in the vicinity of Burnt Island, which is the place of rendezvous of the hostile Sioux.

He states that LITTLE CROW's band are well supplied with ammunition, and that the others have none. LITTLE CROW and his soldiers have been assiduously engaged in circulating the report that all those who gave themselves up last Fall were killed by the whites, and by this means are trying to induce them to engage in a war against the whites.

STANDING BUFFALO has gone on a mission to Gov. DALLAS, to see if he would allow him to come under his protection, as he dont want to be engaged against the whites, and is fearful that he may be made to suffer with the rest.

A large portion of the Indians are anxious for peace, but are fearful if they give themselves up they will be killed, and are therefore waiting the return of STANDING BUFFALO before deciding. LITTLE CROW and his band were determined to carry on the war to the bitter end. They had made no decision when Mr. DAUMANIS left, in what manner the war is to be carried on, but the Indians generally expressed their determination to await the arrival of the whites and fight them there.

Some of the Indians concerned in the raid on the Watonwan, had arrived at Devil's Lake with some of the stolen horses. The raid was made by six of LITTLE CROW's band, from the [illegible] who were [illegible] of the month of [illegible] at Hawkins' [illegible] they killed some citizens [illegible] they killed any soldiers.

[illegible] Indians had been engaged in the fight with the Rees, and were defeated—that refused to join him. He had eight killed and several wounded. Among the killed were Four Bears and his son. A German who was taken prisoner at Big Stone Lake was wounded in the leg. He is about eighteen years of age.

Mr. DAUMANIS also reports that RATTLING MOCCASIN, with about forty lodges, or seventy warriors, is encamped on the Shayenne River, near Dog's Hell, about seventy-five miles from Abercrombie, but that he is soon going to join the rest at Devil's Lake. A portion of his band wintered near the mouth of the Chippewa, and a portion on the head of the Yellow Medicine River. Mr. DAUMANIS reports that two of the Indians that were concerned in the outbreak last Fall have been killed by some of the other Indians. He also reports that the Indians have a plenty of dried meat, and that there are large numbers of buffaloes on the plains.

News from Pembina.

Mr. TARRELL, the dering mail carrier from Pembina, arrived in this city last evening, having left that place on the 16th inst. LITTLE CROW arrived at St. Joe Mountain, near St. Joseph, about a week before Mr. TARRELL left, with about nine hundred and ten warriors. He stated that he came in to get land from the Hudson Bay Company to settle on, but was unsuccessful in his efforts to get land, and the inhabitants would not consent to his remaining on any terms. LITTLE CROW informed some of the people that "he had done some good tricks to the Americans, and will do some more," and that "every Sioux who had killed whites was as good as dead, and he would fight to the last."

Mr. TARRELL says the Red Lake Chippewas are coming into Pembina to make peace with the Sioux. Five Sioux were seen at Otter Tail Lake last Thursday afternoon. The Chippewas saw their tracks, and in the morning saw the Sioux cross to their houses. One of the mail riders kept his horse saddled at a house during the night, and seeing the Indians in the morning, he got on his horse and started toward Crow Wing. Some ten shots were fired at him, but he escaped. Mr. TARRELL stopped in the Pembina house on Friday night. The Sioux are watching on every trail between St. Cloud and Pembina, and are well acquainted with every military movement. Mr. TARRELL says LITTLE CROW and his band have plenty of ammunition with them, and say they have an abundance buried at Table Rock, on the Shayenne River. The little boy captured by them last year near Old Crossing is still in their hands, together with one or two other prisoners. We think if our Mounted Rangers and infantry above half the force of Mr. TARRELL in making the long and dangerous journey from Pembina alone, that few Indians will be left to trouble us at the close of our Summer campaign.

Col. Grierson's men, in their famous raid through Louisiana, had a very clever way of cutting the telegraph wires so as to avoid discovery. Instead of cutting the wires and letting the ends hang loosely, they tied up the ends with strips of leather, so that it could not be easily seen and yet the connection was severed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Semi-official advices from Gen. GRANT's army to the 26th of May have reached the Government. At that time the condition of affairs in the rear of Vicksburgh was mainly unchanged. On the evening of the 25th Gen. PEMBERTON, commanding the rebel forces, asked for two and a half hours' truce to bury his dead, which was granted him. There appears to have been no severe fighting since Monday last—our forces since that time having been engaged in bombarding the rebel stronghold. A dispatch received in Cincinnati states that most of the river batteries had been silenced, and the gunboats were engaged in shelling the rest.

A gentleman who left the vicinity of Vicksburgh as late as Sunday of last week gives an account of affairs in Gen. GRANT's army calculated to correct false impressions. He says our forces are well prepared to repel any attack on their rear, and at the time he left were in the finest spirits, and confident of their ability to capture Vicksburgh and its garrison. The attack on the fortifications on Friday, May 22d was not made by the entire army, as before reported, but by a force under Gen. BLAIR, which assaulted the principal rebel battery, but failed to capture it. Gen. GRANT's base of supplies is on the Yazoo, and is perfectly secure. Reinforcements were arriving as rapidly as required.

The results of the expedition sent up the Yazoo River by Admiral PORTER after the capture of Haines' Bluff, have just been made public through an official report from that officer to the Navy Department. They are of the most important character. Three powerful steamers and a ram of huge dimensions were destroyed at Yazoo City, together with a fine navy-yard and all its appliances. The ram was 310 feet long, and 70 feet beam, and was to be covered with 4-inch iron plates. A battery was also destroyed at Drury's Bluff. The property thus destroyed and captured was valued at over two millions of dollars.

The latest rebel reports from the vicinity of Vicksburgh are to the 26th of May. They simply announce that the rebel garrison was still holding out. It is stated that Gen. BANKS has crossed the Mississippi with his army at Bayou Sara.

It is believed in Cincinnati that the Army of the Cumberland—Gen. ROSECRANS'—is in motion. No dispatches from Murfreesboro were received yesterday.

Gen. BURNSIDE'S headquarters will on Thursday next be removed from Cincinnati to Hickman Bridge, Ky. It is understood that he has recently sent a dispatch to the rebel Gen. BRAGG, announcing his determination to hang all the rebel officers in his hands should retaliation be resorted to by the rebel authorities for the hanging of the two spies in his Department recently.

We have important intelligence from the Indian country this morning, which indicates serious trouble in Missouri once more, unless prompt measures are taken to prevent it. A considerable rebel force, under Gens. SEGELL, COOPER and MCINTOSH, supposed to be the advance of PRICE'S new army, crossed the Arkansas on the 20th near Fort Gibson. Col. PHILLIPS, commanding our forces in that vicinity, had a severe fight with them and succeeded in driving them back, though his force was greatly inferior. They are reported to number about 11,000, and were at last accounts massed on Col. PHILLIPS' front. Col. PHILLIPS has only 3,000 men and a battery, but is well fortified. Dispatches from Fort Larned, received in Leavenworth, also state that a large rebel force, Texans and Indians, is approaching from the Southwest, with the intention of intercepting the trains on the way to New-Mexico. The forces on the frontier, under Gen. BLUNT, are believed to be inadequate to the task now before them.

We learn from Washington that MOSEBY'S guerrillas made their appearance on Saturday at Catlett's Station, on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, with artillery, and attacked a train standing on the track there, consisting of a locomotive and ten cars. A portion of Gen. STAHL'S force subsequently attacked the rebels in a strong position, and succeeded in capturing their artillery. The rebel loss in the affair was quite heavy.

It is stated that Secretary STANTON has ordered that all rebel officers out on parole be placed under close arrest, and no more paroles are to be granted until further orders.

FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Java, from Liverpool on the 21st and Londonderry on the 22d, arrived off Cape Race on Friday afternoon, and a summary of her news is telegraphed. The steamship Sidon, from Liverpool on the 19th and Queenstown on the 20th, arrived at this port yesterday. The advices by these arrivals are five days later, but are of no great importance politically. There was a feeling of suspense regarding American affairs, and a desire to hear further news. Rumors of an armistice between the North and South, growing in some manner out of the news relating to Gen. HOOKER taken out by the Persia, had been dispelled by the Glasgow, which arrived out on the 22d. The London papers commented freely on the movement of Gen. HOOKER, and the apparent position of the National army, and generally came to the conclusion that he would suffer a reverse, if not a disastrous defeat. The news of the captures made by the Alabama and Florida on the South American coast had reached England. The reply of President LINCOLN to the address of the Emancipation Society had been received. He states that the address was very gratifying to him, and he expresses friendly feelings toward England. Accounts from Poland continue to represent the revolution as spreading. The Russian amnesty had been utterly refused in all quarters. The advices taken out by the Glasgow had created buoyancy in the Liverpool Cotton market, and prices, which had been declining during the week, nearly recovered. Breadstuffs and Provisions were steady. Consols for money 93¾.

GENERAL NEWS.

Our correspondence from Venezuela this morning assures us of the end of the civil war in that country, and of the recognition of the Government of Gen. PAEZ by the Federals. A treaty of peace has been signed. Business, in consequence, had become very brisk, and the country bid fair to become once more prosperous.

Hon. J. D. VAN BUREN has received the appointment of Paymaster-General, with the rank of Colonel, on Gov. SEYMOUR'S Staff.

Major H. E. CURTIS has been appointed Adjutant-General of the District of Kansas, with headquarters at Leavenworth.

The Committee of the General Assembly of Kentucky, charged with superintending the interment of the remains of Gen. NELSON, at Camp Dick Robinson, have fixed upon the 17th of June next as the day for the ceremonies. The remains will be removed on the morning of the 14th of June to the Lexington and Louisville depot; thence to Lexington on the 15th; and thence to the camp at Hickman bridge on the 16th. Rev. D. R. CAMPBELL, President of Georgetown College, will deliver the oration.

The entire amount realized by the sale of the prize steamer Bermuda and cargo was half a million of dollars, the half of which will be distributed among the captors—the officers and crew of the steamer Mercedita—as soon as the appeal taken to the Supreme Court is decided, should the decision of the Court below be sustained.

The Stock Market on Saturday was active at advancing prices on the Railway Shares and Pacific Mail, Canton Company, &c.; a fraction lower on Government Stocks of 1881, and steady for Gold Coin at 145¾ cent. Money 6@7 ⅌ cent. to the Stock Brokers. The subscriptions to the New Loan were large, including a single subscription by Messrs. THOMPSON BROTHERS of $1,000,000 for their early June sales.

Flour was less active and less buoyant on Saturday. Wheat and Corn were in good request, but at irregular prices. Oats were brisker and dearer. Pork was depressed and lower. Bacon was more active. Lard was heavy and drooping. Firecrackers, Tallow and Molasses were actively sought after. Hay was plenty and salable at former rates. Whisky was quiet and rather heavy. Cotton was dull. Freights exhibited less animation, with 604 vessels of all classes in port. Other branches of trade presented no really new feature.

Development of Southern Strength—The Issue to be Met.

All who return from the South, after having enjoyed even ordinary facilities for observation, testify to the suffering and inconvenience which the war is, in one way and another, entailing on the entire people—of the scarcity of certain kinds of food and clothing, and tools, and of almost all the luxuries of life; of the enormous depreciation of the currency; of the general want of confidence in Government paper; of the desolation of the cities, the cessation of trade, and—which is more serious than all—of the abstraction of the entire white population from the ordinary pursuits of peace, and, of course, of an enormous waste of it by battle and disease.

But they tell, too—what it is of still greater importance that we should know and ponder upon—of the complete absorption of the whole mind and whole resources of the country in the work of carrying on the war; of the complete prostration of everybody and everything at the feet of the military power; of the supremacy of "military necessity" over the law of the land and over all individual rights; of the complete unanimity, in appearance at least, which the Executive manages to secure in support of its policy; and above all things, of the development both among the army and the people of a military spirit of unsurpassed temper, toughness and elasticity. Everything has been placed in the hands of JEFFERSON DAVIS, and although he has managed to ruin every preexisting institution in the country, not excepting Slavery, he has also managed to convert the Southern people into a vast, well-organized, well-led and formidable army. Southern society has, in fact, in two short years of war, lost almost every trace of its old Democratic Republican organization. It is now neither more nor less than (if we may use the phrase) a military hierarchy—a sort of huge Sparta—in which millions of helots toil for the sole purpose of supplying a host of warriors with ammunition, forage and food. To be a great military power, is, we cannot disguise from ourselves, the great ambition of the Southern people; and, moreover, the vast majority of them are satisfied that they are a great military power already; that their soldiers, officers and Generals are the first in the world. They are proud of all they have already done, and confident as to what they are still to do.

If history teaches us anything, it teaches us that, whenever a community is thus converted into an army, and has once acquired the thirst for martial glory, it is an instrument of destruction of immense power and keenness, which waits but for the hand of an ambitious and skillful operator to make it a terror to the world, or at least to its neighbors. The examples are, if not numerous, too notorious to make it necessary that we should recall them. And the operator is never long in coming. The machinery never stands long idle for want of the master mind that is to direct its movements. So that, if events take the shape which the Southern leaders are seeking to give them, there is nothing more certain than that we shall have on our hands, if we have it not already, an enemy or a neighbor whose one idea of progress will be conquest, and whose entire energies will be directed to the organization of brute force for the purpose of striking terror. We know from the history of the Old World how dangerous a power of this sort would be. It would be doubly dangerous in the case of the Confederacy, because it would be under the influence of theories more barbarous and more hostile to the notions of political morality now commonly recognized, than those which have presided at the birth of any great military organization of modern times. A Christian host, fanatically devoted to Slavery on Bible grounds, is a much more dangerous enemy to civilization than a Pagan one seeking power for simple human love of it. There is always hope that the Pagans may be converted or improved, but when Christianity has been tried and failed, the most ardent moral reformer may well despair.

Supposing, then, all this that we hear of the Southern determination, valor, discipline, morale and ambition to be true—what effect ought it to have on our course? Ought we, because they are proving more formidable than we ever expected them to prove, hasten to make peace, before we have still further exhausted our strength in the endeavor to overcome them—before their metal has been still further solidified by our blows? Ought we to seek to conciliate them by concession and forbearance, and by strong testimonies to their courage and bravery and strength? We answer unhesitatingly, No! The more we hear of Southern pluck and energy and spirit and resources, the more satisfied we are, painful as we admit the conclusion to be, that we must conquer them or they conquer us. Had they proved themselves weak or divided or pusillanimous, as many of us confidently expected they would, there would have been far more to say in favor of letting them go in peace than there is now that they have shown themselves both strong in war and shrewd in council. The United States and the kind of State which the Confederacy seeks to become, cannot exist together on this Continent. One or other must perish. Such institutions as ours are; such progress as we seek and glory in, are not possible and never would be possible beside such neighbors as the slaveholders are seeking to make themselves. Beside a vast camp, we would have to be a vast camp. To despotic secrecy, energy and concentration, we should have to oppose similar weapons. Competition in the arts of peace, in the pursuit of science and industry would be impossible with men who have long made a boast of despising industry, and who already begin to make war the first object of their study and their thoughts. Let them, in short, but carry out their plans, and we predict confidently that the generation now growing up would see this Continent divided between two great military despotisms engaged in the intervals between tremendous wars in interchanging hollow courtesies from behind a million of bayonets; and with almost every trace of the things of which we are proudest to-day—our liberty, our equality, our industrial energy, our humanity, our intelligence—forever obliterated.

There is no thinking man, who reflects on these things with an honest desire to serve his country, come what will of his party, who can avoid the sorrowful conclusion that, cost what it may, the fighting has to go on either until the Confederacy is destroyed, root and branch, or until there are no more left at the North who think liberty worth defending, or this Republic—from which the human race hopes and has hoped so much—worth saving. Every man in the Confederate service, from DAVIS down, must be made to know that his death or submission are the ends we aim at, and that the braver and more determined we know him to be, the more firmly decided are we that he and his associates shall either lay down their arms, or quit the country, or die.

The Democracy and the War.

The Democratic State Committee has held another meeting at Albany, in order to define, over again, the position of the Democratic party. The progress of public sentiment sweeps their party landmarks away so rapidly as to render absolutely necessary these reiterated endeavors to keep the party together by constructing new platforms from time to time, as exigencies may require. Two incidents called the Committee together at the present time: the first was the Loyal State Convention at Utica, which ignored all party divisions, and rallied patriots of every name and of every party to the supreme work of saving the country, and the second was the approaching Peace Convention, to convene in this City day after to-morrow. The Democratic State Committee found its party in danger of an attack both in front and rear. Its loyal members were likely to join the Union League, and its peace element seemed in danger of seeking the embrace of FERNANDO WOOD and Company. The Committee had, therefore, the double duty of erecting defences in both directions.

The front defences embrace a distinct declaration that "they will continue to render the Government their sincere and united support in the use of all legitimate means to suppress the rebellion and to restore the Union," and by a protest against the conclusion of any peace except on the basis of preserving the Union. The works in rear contain sundry heavy guns against arbitrary arrests and other alleged misdeeds of the Administration. The resolution protesting against a premature and damaging peace is the most curious part of the whole performance. It reads thus:

"That—as the inauguration of affirmative peace movements at this time by those who have no power to give effect to their views, might afford the dominant party a pretext, in conspiracy with the Southern Confederacy, to make a peace by a separation of the States—and whereas the Democratic and conservative masses of our people, who are opposed to any terms of peace which fail to restore the Union and save the Constitution, hesitate to trust that matter to the hands of those who are hostile to both—we deem this a fit occasion to protest against the negotiation of a peace by the Administration, except upon the basis of a preservation of the Union and of the Government established by the Constitution."

We have not the slightest disposition to be hypercritical in examining the language in which the Democracy may choose to put forth its sentiments. Our columns bear witness that we desire, above all things, the practical, effective union of men of all parties in the great work of crushing the rebellion and saving the nation. Upon minor questions at issue between political parties, we are perfectly willing that men should differ hereafter as they have differed hitherto. But it seems to us clear that all patriots should unite in prosecuting the war, and in giving the world to understand that we shall consent to no peace which involves the destruction of the Union. Whatever else we may or may not give up, that is the one thing we shall not surrender. And we congratulate the country upon the fact that the Democratic party of this State has, through its recognized State Committee, taken that ground. Whether it has done it voluntarily, and under a sense of patriotic duty, or whether it has been driven to it by the pressure of public sentiment, and by the perils threatening its party organization, we do not care to inquire. It is enough that It has done it. And we beg to assure the Democratic State Committee that it will find us joining heartily in protesting against any peace which shall sacrifice the Union. We care not whether the negotiation of such a peace be attempted by this Administration or by any other; we shall resist it, and are glad to learn that the Democracy of this State will do likewise.

As to the denunciations of martial law, arbitrary arrests, &c., in which the Committee so largely indulged, we have very little to say. We regard them as of very little consequence. They were necessary, doubtless, to the working of the party machinery, but they will do but little damage. These men cannot blind the people to the real issue, by thus thrusting other questions into the foreground. The people are determined to put down the rebellion. They will make any sacrifices which that may require. They will overlook any trespass upon merely personal rights which may be incident to the accomplishment of this end; and they will visit with memorable and ignominious punishment all who attempt to ruin the country under cover of vindicating individual rights. And when the war is over, they will then see to it that every bulwark of civil liberty is again in its place, and will punish any Administration that may attempt to overthrow them.

We are curious now to see what the Peace Democrats have to say to this new manifesto of the State Democracy. Will they assent to this doctrine and thus maintain the integrity of the party, and demonstrate the substantial unity of our people in support of the war? Or will they be straightforward in demanding peace, regardless of consequences to the Union and the Constitution? We shall soon see.

Grant and Johnston.

It is now fifteen days since the battle of Big Black Bridge, and fourteen since the investment of Vicksburgh. With the first of these events, Gen. JOHNSTON saw the desperateness of the rebel situation at Vicksburgh, and the necessity of the utmost energy in concentrating all possible troops to flank GRANT, and, if possible, to raise the siege. We have had no special information as to his success during these fifteen days in bringing up reinforcements—though the dispatch said to have been sent by him to PEMBERTON assured the latter that in fifteen days he would aid him with a hundred thousand men. His facilities for bringing forward men are not very great, as the railroads are few, ricketty and much damaged by our raids, and the places from which reinforcements can be obtained are very distant. We have the evidence of eye-witnesses that troops have been brought from Charleston, which is distant from Jackson 767 miles; and if they have been brought from Charleston, they have doubtless also been brought from Savannah, Mobile, and all the garrisoned positions in the Gulf States, if not from North Carolina. We have also had numerous rumors that reinforcements were being got from BRAGG'S army; and though the shortest line of communication between Tullahoma and Jackson may not be available, yet it would be easier to take troops from Chattanooga by the Western and Atlantic Railroad to Atlanta, and thence to Jackson, than to transport them from the Atlantic coast. They would not dare, however, to take them from BRAGG, unless they were fully convinced that ROSECRANS did not contemplate motion, as they doubtless are convinced that it is not contemplated by HUNTER.

GRANT, however, with his right on the Mississippi River, above Vicksburgh, is in far better position to receive reinforcements than JOHNSTON, and the War Department is, doubtless, fully advised of his necessities. The rebels send us news that BANKS has crossed to the east side of the Mississippi, at Bayou Sara, which is only ten miles above Port Hudson; and, if this be correct, it looks more as if he was going to watch his opportunity to seize Port Hudson than to coöperate directly with GRANT.

The country, of course, looks to the gallant army of ROSECRANS (with the permission of the powers at Washington) to watch BRAGG'S force in his front, and to give him prompt battle if he attempt to move his forces down to overwhelm Gen. GRANT.

A BROKEN-DOWN REBEL.—JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE has been as unfortunate as a General as he formerly was fortunate as a politician. In political service he obtained every honor which he coveted, except the highest; and this, too, while yet a young man. In the rebel army, misfortunes have followed him, and dishonors have been heaped upon him, until now, stung to the quick by the accusations officially made against him by Gen. BRAGG, regarding his conduct at the last battle in which he was an actor, he has written a letter to Richmond, demanding justice and a Court of Inquiry. He says that BRAGG'S report thoroughly disparages both him and his command—that BRAGG levels his strictures at his conduct as an officer during all the operations, and that BRAGG, by direct statement and unmistakable innuendo, reflects upon his capacity and conduct. BRECKINRIDGE retorts sharply upon his superior officer in replying to these accusations—charges him with misrepresentation, injustice and baser crimes, and contends that the failure of his troops to hold their position at the battle of Stone River was due to no fault of theirs or his, but to the fact that BRAGG commanded them to do an impossible thing.

It is difficult to decide upon the merits of the controversy between these two great rebels—though we have no doubt BRECKINRIDGE deserves all the censures BRAGG has heaped upon him, and we know that BRAGG is as great a knave and hypocrite as BUCHANAN insinuates.

It would seem as though the controversy had reached a crisis—for a rebel telegram we give this morning announces BRECKINRIDGE'S arrival at Atlanta, Georgia, doubtless on his way to Richmond to settle the case with JEFF. DAVIS.

The Kentucky troops in BRAGG'S army are deeply attached to BRECKINRIDGE, and entertain a bitter animosity to BRAGG, who has taken every opportunity to disparage them. Latterly they have been much disaffected, and hundreds of them have escaped within our lines. As the great army of rebel Missourians once with "Daddy" PRICE has melted away, under the conviction that whatever might be the fortunes of the rebellion Missouri was irrevocably bound to the Union,—so the Kentucky forces with BRECKINRIDGE are melting away under the same conviction with regard to their State.

The Crisis in Canada—Signs of Disaffection.

An ordinary party crisis in Canada would not be likely to disturb the balance of power in either world; and would, perhaps, fail to excite any particular emotion beyond a limited provincial circle. But, we take it, that a careful analysis of the Parliamentary upheavals which have been witnessed in Canada, at intervals during the past twelve months, would show something like a growing conflict of interest and of sympathy between the great dependency and its parent country.

About a year ago the so-called Conservative Government, led by a converted "rebel" of '37—Mr. GEORGE E. CARTIER—were defeated in the House of Assembly on a proposal to reorganize the volunteer militia force of the country, and appropriate a million odd dollars toward its equipment. A small anti-war majority threw out Mr. CARTIER'S proposition, and left him the alternative, provided by what is called "responsible Government," of resigning his position, or of making his appeal to the electors at the polls. He made a virtue of resignation, and a successor was named by Gov. MONCK, in the person of Mr. JOHN SANDFIELD MACDONALD—a radical loyalist in politics, and a Catholic in religion, who was supposed to possess the power of bringing into a party combination a section of the Conservative, along with the whole of the Radical party, East and West. He was allowed verge and scope enough for the execution of his task. The members he brought into his Cabinet were permitted to make their appeal to their constituencies unopposed; and at the adjournment of Parliament last year, they were provided with the means of developing their policy, and carrying on the Government during the six or nine months of parliamentary vacation, without let or hindrance. Part of the time was employed in providing for compromises with the Imperial authorities on the question of arming the Province. Another portion of the vacation was occupied in attempts to agree with the Colonial Office in London on the subject of a military railroad from Halifax to Quebec. On both these points, the attempts at agreement were futile. Whatever wish the loyal Premier may have had to please his masters in Downing-street, he lacked the energy or power to bring his more radical colleagues to the same faith. His ministry had, indeed, barely settled down to work when the most talented French Canadian member of it resigned, distinctly on the ground that it was not the business of the colonists to tax themselves for an unproductive military road, merely because occasions might arise when the policy of the English Foreign Office would lead to international troubles, involving the Provinces in an Imperial war.

The name of this recusant member deserves to be known—Mr. A. A. DORION, a prominent Montreal lawyer, and the recognized head of the Rouges, or Republican party of Lower Canada. His character is, in every regard, beyond reproach; and, while he enjoys the confidence of the "Liberals" of Canada West, he can count among his party followers probably not less than one-third of the representatives for his own section of the Province. The resignation of this gentleman was a serious blow to the Sandfield Macdonald Cabinet. But they struggled on, through the quiet vacation months, in spite of it, and even made a show of carrying on negotiations in England for the construction of the obnoxious military road. Two of the Ministers—one from each section of the Province—went to London, to save appearances, but their conferences with the Duke of Newcastle only ended in their presenting a note to the Imperial Minister, in which they refused to enter the copartnership in the Halifax and Quebec Railway, along with the Home Government and the Maritime Provinces, unless on the recognized principle that the mother country, equally with the colonies, shall share the risks and liabilities of the undertaking. In brief, the Canadian delegates desired an excuse to get out of the scheme altogether; and, in fact, they showed most distinctly, in their correspondence with the Colonial Office, that they held, in the fullest sense, the views of their former colleague, Mr. DORION, while, at the same time, they lacked the courage and manliness to make these views the basis of a resignation of their seats in the Cabinet.

Thus, then, during the first half year of their reign the Sandfield Macdonald Government had placed themselves in antagonism to the Imperial Government on the two great questions of arming the Province, and of providing, at a cost of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, a military highway, to meet the eventualities of a war between England and this country. In this untoward condition the unfortunate Ministers had to meet Parliament in February last, and face the opposition of the special agents of Downing-street and the bitter grudges of the railway interest. The latter, indeed, no doubt brought about the crisis which continues up to the present hour. On to the intercolonial military road it had been proposed by the previous Government (Tory) to tack the unproductive or eastern portion of the bankrupt concern called the "Grand Trunk." The BARING and GLYNNS, of London, and the large interest they represent, were especially eager for the building of the intercolonial road—solely as a means of salvation for the Trunk line, in which they and their clients have sunk over $60,000,000. They made friends, accordingly, with the Tories—four of the principal leaders of which party have notoriously become immensely wealthy out of one or more of the railway swindles, and the result was that a vote of non-confidence—as our readers may have noticed—was proposed in the House of Assembly a month or more ago,—resulting, first, in the defeat of the Sandfield Macdonald Ministry, as it formerly stood; next, in the remodeling of the personnel of the Cabinet, including the restitution of Mr. Dorion; and lastly, in the dissolution of Parliament and the issue of writs for a new General Election.

In this position, then, stand the issue at the present hour: The railway interest and the Tories combined had a momentary triumph in defeating the Ministry in the House of Assembly; but this was counterbalanced, first, by the reorganization of the Ministry on a still more radical and anti-railway basis; and also by the Governor's having permitted an appeal, by his advisers, to the electors at the polls.

It now remains to be seen of what complexion the members returned at this election will turn out. The first of the new nominations has just been made; but six weeks are allowed by the Crown within which the writs are returnable; so that it will be the 4th of July before the final return is officially announced. In the meantime, we may indicate, in a word, what are the probable results. The priest party and the railway interest will jointly carry a majority against the Government in Lower Canada. The very existence of the great railway Corporation is almost involved in the return to power of the Tory leaders, who, in addition to the vast subsidies they secured for the undertaking from the Provincial Treasury, had secretly, and in defiance of law, advanced it over a million of dollars, a fact which the vigilance of the new Government has only recently brought to light. The electors of Upper Canada, on the other hand, are likely to give the Government a large majority; but it may be doubted if it will be sufficient to counterbalance their want of support in the Lower Province.

THE SAME OLD SUBTERFUGE.—Whatever other changes the war may have brought about in men and things at the South, it has not changed the nature and habits of HENRY A. WISE. We see it stated that he has recently written an abusive letter to Gen. DIX, covering twenty-two closely-written pages. This is nearly a tenth part as long as his average messages when he was Governor. WISE was always the longest-winded writer and orator in the Southern States, not even excepting FOOTE, of Mississippi. He always managed to get a good deal of originality and vituperative rhetoric into his productions, but seldom a grain of common sense. In this respect he evidently holds his own, as Gen. DIX returned his missive with the indorsement that it was "neither fit to be written or received."

THE UTICA CONVENTION.—It is very amusing to observe the vigorous and united attempts of the journals in the Copperhead interest to disparage the Loyal State Convention at Utica. The Albany Argus and Atlas teems with paragraphs of all shapes and sizes seeking to prove that it was a failure, that nobody was there, that it was an overwhelming McClellan demonstration, &c., &c. If it was so small an affair, why make so much fuss about it? And if it was a McClellan meeting, why abuse it? This excessive anxiety to belittle it, proves that somebody is hurt.

AMUSEMENTS.

An important change of programme takes place to-night at Niblo's Garden, where, instead of the ordinary "star" performances, we are to have a new, and according to rumors, good play, produced with new scenery, dresses, and a competent company. The change will, we hope, be acceptable to a large number of the patrons of the establishment. Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM is the author of the novelty in question, which is called the "Duke's Motto." It has met with the greatest success in London, and is still being played there. All the resources of Niblo's will be exhausted in bringing the work before our public, and Mr. COLLINS and Mr. WEMMERSLEY sustain the principal parts. At Mr. WALLACK'S theatre the comedy of "A Bold Stroke for a Husband" will be played for the last time this season. Novelties are still announced as in preparation at this house, although the season must be drawing rapidly to a close. At the Winter Garden Mlle. VESTVALI'S opera troupe will give a performance, and at BARNUM'S Museum there will be loved by TOM THUMB and his wife, little Minnie WARREN and Commodore NUTT, besides the usual attractions and entertainments in other parts of the establishment.

Lovers of the Fine Arts are reminded that the National Academy of Design is still open, and that Mr. GOUPIL'S splendid painting of "Sunrise on the Alps" remains on exhibition at Goupil's picture gallery of art. A work by BAUDRY, called "Modesty," is also to be seen at No. 607 Broadway.

Prohibition Republicanism has a representative in Mr. F. S. HOVEY, the "Commissioner of Ireland," as some week-minded politicians call him. His plays, with one or two exceptions, are vapid; the plots being far-fetched, and the language affected. Precisely of this character is the "Wife," recently revived at Mr. WALLACK'S. The work is defective in construction. It ends to all intents and purposes with the second act, and commences again with the third. The characters, without exception, are conventional; the dialogue is bombastic, turgid and involved. In the trial scene of the second act, where Lorenzo revolts against the despotic ruling of the Duke, there is an opportunity for the display of simple dignity of language. The situation is striking; it can hardly fail to appeal to the sympathies of an audience. Lorenzo, apparently conscious of this, puts on his highest pair of stilts, and strides through a page of commonplaces with an inquietude that is truly surprising. He is elsewhere so lofty that it is difficult to perceive where he is going to. One listens to his lines with a confused idea that they are not English, and with a secret yearning that the author might stumble and break his neck against a single sentence of intelligible prose. That the play, notwithstanding its weaknesses, is a favorite with the acting fraternity, is proved by the fact that it still continues to find its way to the stage, and has won the honors of a revival at Mr. WALLACK'S Theatre. The leading parts at this fair-named establishment are well sustained. Mrs. HOEY is excellent as Marioma, albeit somewhat overdressed in the third act, where special reference is made to the austerity of the lady's seclusion during her husband's absence. Mr. F. Lester Wallack plays the part of Julien St. Pierre with great reserve, and although we would rather see this gentleman in comedy, the impersonation deserves to be recorded as one of his best. Mr. Gilmore was good as the Curate, and the minor rôles were well sustained by the company. The work has drawn good houses, and to this extent may be regarded as a success. It will, of course, be repeated. The scenery, where new, is very fine, and the costumes all that need be expected.

We regret to learn that Mr. MAX MARETZEK is suffering from a severe attack of indisposition. Had he been a stager, instead of an impresario, it is probable that he would have published a doctor's certificate last season with the rest of them, for he was frequently and seriously under the weather. Repose and a sojourn in the country will, we hope, restore Mr. MARETZEK to his usual health, in time for the opening of the season in October next. By that time Signs. MARONI will have returned to the country, and rumor already speaks of other important additions to the troupe. We are glad to state that Mr. MARETZEK has taken the lease of the Academy of Music.

Next season promises to be an extremely interesting one in musical matters. In addition to the usual attraction of Italian opera, we shall have a new season of German opera under the able direction of Mr. CARL ANSCHUTZ. The experiment of 1862-3 was sufficient to demonstrate that there is a large and reliable class of patrons for this kind of entertainment, not only amongst our German but also amongst our native citizens. An entirely new troupe of artists has been engaged, or will be engaged, in Europe, and the performances will be given in a first-class Broadway theatre, instead of the dirty little establishment at the corner of Broome-street.

The performances of the VESTVALI "English Opera Troupe" are drawing rapidly to a close. "Orpheus" will be withdrawn after the present week, and the English Opera Company, being deficient in a few voices—for instance, a soprano, a tenor, a baritone and a basso—will glide elegantly into choice Tuscan. In other words, Italian Opera will take the place of English Opera. "Romeo" and "Lucrezia Borgia" are, probably, the works that will occupy the last week of Miss. VESTVALI's engagement. We are anxious to see what the management will say of these performances. Of Orpheus, it has been reiterated day after day "that the entire press of America and Europe" have pronounced it to be "the greatest vocal and dramatic impersonation ever witnessed on the lyric stage and classified as vying with those of RACHEL and MALIBRAN," a statement which for our part we utterly repudiate. It is by no means the greatest impersonation we have ever witnessed, and in no respect has recalled the great and sacred memories of the artists thus irreverently named. This we can say without any depreciation of a meritorious and ambitious artist. But what is left to be said of Romeo and of Orsini if so much has been bestowed on Orpheus? How ridiculous does even a deserving singer become in this sickening glare of puffery.

Sale of Valuable Oil-paintings.

Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER is, for one in his position, one of the most liberal patrons of the fine arts in this country, and has collected, during the past few years, a very valuable collection of rare and beautiful oil-paintings, from the easels of eminent foreign and native talent. On Wednesday night very many of these paintings, comprising fine specimens from the pencils of Williamson, and many others of equal note, will be sold by Messrs. IVES & Co. at the Derby Gallery.

An unusual interest will attach to this sale on account of the superiority of the works and the former ownership of them, and doubtless most liberal prices will be obtained.

The Thumbs.

If our readers can for the moment divest themselves of the exhibitionary influences so apparently inseparable from the Lilliputian Thumb group now at the Museum, and will look at those four little men and women as immortal beings and fellow-creatures, they will doubtless be struck, as we have been, with the singularity of the attitude assumed by the dwarfs, and the peculiarity of their mental as well as physical condition.

THUMB, his wife, his sister-in-law and young NURSE, are, in combined age, eighty-two years old; and for and they measure but twelve feet; on one scale they weigh hardly one hundred pounds, and yet they think and act, love and marry, transact business of great pecuniary extent, are partial to public life, rejoice in their insignificance, and swell with pride at the attention their deformity attracts.

The question of their interior life is most interesting, and, dismissing from our thoughts the Museum and its business departments or interests, we advise seriously all readers, old or young, who have not seen this fearfully and wonderfully made group of child-men and child-women, to visit them before, on their tour of self-exhibition and aggrandizement, they leave for the older lands.

For the Sick and Wounded Soldiers at Washington.

In response to the call for oranges and lemons, for the sick and wounded soldiers in hospitals at Washington and vicinity, we learn that D. R. MARTIN, Esq., President of the Ocean Bank, and the lady members of his family, (members of the New-England Soldiers' Relief Association,) aided by the generous contributions of lady friends, procured sixty boxes of the above-mentioned fruits, which were forwarded on Saturday. Forty more boxes will be forwarded on Tuesday. Mr. JOHN HOEY, of Adams' Express, hearing of the movement, offered the services of Adams' Express to Col. HOWE, the Superintendent of the New-England Rooms, which were accepted, and they will be delivered free of expense to Surgeon-General HAMMOND at Washington.

The Billiard Tournament.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THIS EVENING.

All the players, except Messrs. SEREREYER, FOX and NELNS, were in town on Saturday evening, when a meeting was held in which the above players were represented by proxy. A code of rules were drawn up and signed, after which the parties drew for numbers to represent their respective positions at the tournament, which resulted as follows: No. 1, Kavanagh; 2, Dion; 3, Sereyer; 4, Foley; 5, Goldthwait; 6, Deery; 7, Fox; 8, Sampat; 9, Nelns. It was afterward agreed that three games of 500 each should be played by the six first mentioned this evening. Thus the ball opens with KAVANAGH against TIBBALS, SEREREYER against FOLEY, and GOLDTHWAIT against DEERY. All the players are to be on hand promptly, and the game will begin at Irving Hall at 8 o'clock.

A Printer Killed by a Fall.

Last night, at about 9 o'clock, PHILLIP McDONOUGH, a compositor on the World newspaper, fell from the fourth story of the rear of the building occupied by that establishment, and was instantly killed. He was believed to have been sitting or reclining on the window-sill at the time of the accident. In his fall he intercepted a sign just below the window, and also struck against another sign two stories below—both adding to the violence of his fall. McDONOUGH was newly married and lived at No. 77 Nevins-street, Brooklyn. He was formerly a compositor on the Times.

THE CHERRY-STREET EXPLOSION—CORONER'S INQUEST.—Coroner NAUMANN held an inquest, yesterday, at the Seventh Precinct Station-house, upon the body of THEODORE LEMKE, one of the victims of the explosion which occurred on Thursday last at WILSON's cracker bakery, in Cherry-street. The jury rendered a verdict "that the deceased came to his death from burns accidentally received from the sudden ignition of gas and explosion in an oven belonging to WILSON's cracker bakery, in Cherry-street. We further believe that the accident was caused by neglecting to draw out the gas damper before opening the oven door." The deceased was a native of this City, aged 21 years.

FIRE IN DUANE-STREET.—Late on Saturday night, flames were discovered issuing from the fifth story window of building No. 165 Duane-street, occupied by Messrs. WILLIAM BENJAMIN & Co. as a dry-goods store. The damage to the stock and building will amount to about $3,000. The occupants were fully insured in the Republican, Howard and Knickerbocker Insurance Companies. The cause of the fire could not be ascertained.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG,
Author of "Surgical and Practical Observations on the Diseases of the Ear, with his new Mode of Treatment."

NEW TESTIMONY.

NEW-YORK, May 4.

I was entirely deaf in my left ear, accompanied by a discharge. I placed myself under Dr. VON EISENBERG's care, who, by his great skill, restored me to perfect hearing, in the short space of a few minutes, without giving me the slightest pain, and the discharge has ceased entirely. The Eustachian Tube, which was obstructed, is quite open, and I feel that the air-passage performs its functions. I am amply satisfied, and recommend every one suffering from impaired hearing to place themselves under the treatment of this eminent and successful physician.

THOMAS GRAHAM, No. 120 Gold-st.

NEW-YORK, May 7, 1863.

I have great pleasure in testify to the skill of Dr. VON EISENBERG. I went into his office almost completely deaf, and came out with my perfect hearing. It is nearly twelve months since, and the hearing is perfect. The operation, which lasted two or three minutes in each of my ears, gave me no pain whatsoever; I, with confidence, recommend all sufferers to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG's unsurpassing skill.

SAMUEL C. HUNT,
No. 6 Montrose-st., Greenpoint, L. I.

No. 156 MADISON-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noises in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. VON EISENBERG, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. VON EISENBERG to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. VON EISENBERG removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with congealed blood, restoring her instantaneously, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

GARROLL J. POST, No. 38 South-st.

No. 23 FORSYTH-ST., ROOM No. 40, NEW-YORK.

J. B. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to put you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when, after one operation, my hearing was suddenly, and without pain, restored to me, for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf almost shut out from the pleasure of being in company, I state—to have it retamed, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for the immense amount of skill you possess. I shall be happy to be your humble servant.

EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ.

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull throbbing in the head. I felt my head completely stuffed, accompanied by continual hawking in the throat, the chills creeping over me with occasional hot flashes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. VON EISENBERG, I called on him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the City. Dr. VON EISENBERG's skill in his scientific and successful treatment of deafness, as he has shown in my case, the skill and knowledge which have proved for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. VON EISENBERG, who is certainly the skillful man."

BY HIS NEPHEW,
PIERRE M. IRVING.
Price in cloth, $1 75.

N. B.—Those who have had the first two volumes will be supplied with the third, until July 3, AT THE FIRST PRICE.

☞ "The most attractive American volume of the month is the third volume of (this popular national biography.")

"The incidents of the "Tour on the Prairies"—"Astoria"—The Great Fire in New-York—Purchase of Sunnyside—Western Land Speculation, etc., etc.—"Many of them novel and all interesting." * * "Mr. Irving's Expedition in Spain is given in most graphic and pleasant details."—Ibid.

Indeed, we have only to reiterate our commendation of the good taste, good sense, tact and judgment wherewith the author of this memoir has executed his delicate and difficult though delightful task. To those who cherish the personal acquaintance of Washington Irving, there is not a page, a letter or an anecdote in this volume which does not bring the living, loving man directly before the mind's eye and the heart's recognition. We congratulate the public upon the fact that still another volume of this delightful biography awaits them; it will comprise the last thirteen years of Irving's life.—Boston Transcript.

BUREAU OF STEAM ENGINEERING, May 23, 1863.

PROPOSALS FOR MATERIALS FOR THE NAVY.—SEALED PROPOSALS to furnish materials for the Navy for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1864, will be received at the Bureau of Steam Engineering, until the fifth day of June next.

Proposals must be indorsed "Proposals for Materials for the Navy," that they may be distinguished from other business letters, and directed to the Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering.

Bids are to be entered embossed in the classes named are particularly described in the printed schedules, any of which will be furnished to such as desire to offer on application to the Commandants of the respective yards, or to the Navy Agent nearest thereto, and the use of all the yards upon application to the Bureau. This division into classes being for the convenience of dealers in each, such portions only will be furnished as are actually required for bids. The Commandant and Navy Agent of each station will, in addition to the schedule of classes of their own yards have a copy of the schedules of the other yards for examination only, from which may be judged whether it will be desirable to make application for any of the classes of those yards.

Offers must be made for the whole of the class at any yard upon one of the printed schedules, or in strict conformity therewith, or they will not be considered. In computing the classes the price stated in the column of prices will be the standard, and the aggregate of the class will be corrected according to the prices stated.

These contracts will be awarded to the lowest bona fide bidder who gives proper security for its fulfillment. The United States reserves the right to reject all the bids for any class, if deemed exorbitant.

All articles must be of the very best quality, to be delivered in the Navy-Yard in good order, and in suitable vessels and packages, properly marked with the name of the contractor, as the case may be, at the expense and risk of the contractor, and, in all respects subject to the inspection, measurement, count, weight, &c., of the yard where received, and to the entire satisfaction of the Commandant thereof.

Bidders are referred to the Commandants of the respective yards for samples, instructions, or particular description of the articles; and, all other things being equal, preference will be given to articles of American manufacture.

Every offer, as required by the law of 19th August, 1846, must be accompanied by a written guarantee, the form of which is herewith given.

And also by a certificate signed by the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District in which the bidder resides, that he has a license to deal in the article for which he proposes, or by an affidavit signed by himself, and sworn to before some magistrate authorized to administer an oath, that he is a manufacturer of, or regular dealer in, the articles which he offers to supply.

Those offers which may be accepted will be notified and the contract will be forwarded as soon thereafter as practicable, which they will be required to execute within ten days after its receipt at the post-office or Navy agency named by them.

The contracts will bear date the day the notification is given, and deliveries can be demanded.

Sureties in the full amount will be required to sign the contract, and their responsibility certified to by a United States District Judge, United States District Attorney, or Collector of Internal Revenue. An additional security equal to one-fourth of every contract will be withheld from the amount of the bills until the contract shall have been completed; and eighty per centum of each bill, approved in triplicate by the Commandants of the respective yards, will be paid by the Navy Agent at the points of delivery in certificates of indebtedness or Treasury notes at the option of the Government.

It is stipulated in the contract that if default be made in the parties of the first part in delivering all or any of the articles contracted for in any class bid for in the proportion of the quality and at the time and places above prescribed, then, and in that case, the contractor and his sureties will forfeit and pay to the United States a sum of money not exceeding twice the amount of such class, which may be recovered from time to time, according to the act of Congress in that case provided, approved March 3, 1843.

Bids must not contain classes for more than one yard in the same envelope, and bidders are requested to indorse on the envelope the Navy-yard for which the bid is made.

Form of Offer.

Which from a firm must be signed by all the members:

Q. ——— of ——— In the State of ———, hereby agree to furnish and deliver in the respective Navy-yards all the articles named in the classes hereunto annexed, agreeably to the terms of advertisement of the Bureau of Steam Engineering of May 23, 1863. Extracts From Laws of the United States.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That no contract or order, or any interest therein shall be transferred by the party or parties to whom such contract or order may be given to any other party or parties, and that any such transfer shall cause the annulment of the contract or order transferred so far as the United States are concerned: Provided, That all the rights of action are hereby reserved to the United States for any breach of such contract by the contracting party or parties.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That whenever any contractor for subsistence, clothing, arms, ammunition, munitions of war, and for every description of supplies for the Army or Navy of the United States shall be found guilty by a Court-martial of fraud or willful neglect of duty, he shall be punished by fine, imprisonment, or such other punishment as the Court-martial shall adjudge; and any person who shall contract to furnish supplies of any kind or description for the Army or Navy, he shall be deemed and taken as a part of the land or naval forces of the United States for which he shall contract to furnish supplies, and be subject to the rules and regulations for the government of the land and naval forces of the United States. Approved, July 17, 1862.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the chief or assistant clerk of the Navy Department, in contracting for naval supplies, shall be at liberty to reject the offer of any person who, as principal or surety, has been a defaulter in any previous contract with the Navy Department; nor shall parties who have failed as principals and sureties in any former contract be received as sureties on other contracts, nor shall the copartners of any firm be received as sureties for such firm or for each other; nor, in contracts with the same bureau, shall one contractor be received as surety for another; and every contract shall require the delivery of a specified quantity, and no bids shall be received for fractional parts of a whole quantity. That if more than one bid be offered by any one party, by or in the name of his or their clerk, partner, or other person, all such bids may be rejected; and no person shall be received as a contractor who is not a manufacturer of the articles contracted for, or who shall offer to supply, who has not a license as such manufacturer or dealer. And all persons offering bids shall have the right to be present when the bids are opened and inspect the same.

Approved, March 3, 1863.

Dated Street Department, New-York, May 21, 1863.

QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON CITY, March 10, 1863.

OWNERS OF STEAM VESSELS ARE INVITED to send to the Quartermaster-General's Office tenders for their charter or sale.

Senders should contain descriptions of the vessels, their dimensions, enrolled or registered tonnage, actual carrying capacity, material, whether copper-fastened, whether wheel or propellers, whether iron or copper fastened, size and power of engines and boilers; and should state the price at which they are offered, for long or short charter, with the estimated value of the vessel in case of loss, or in case the Government should prefer to purchase instead of chartering.

Owners of steam vessels already in the service of the Quartermaster's Department are requested to make known to the Department any reduction in their present rates which they may be willing to grant, and also the price at which they will be willing to sell their vessels.

All such tenders should be addressed to the Quartermaster-General of the United States at Washington, and should be indorsed

"Proposals for charter or sale of steamers."

When received they will be considered, and the Department will endeavor to reduce the heavy expense attending army transportation, upon the ocean and tide-waters, by substituting, wherever it can do so, cheaper vessels of equal capacity by those now employed.

QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, No. 6 State-st.,
NEW-YORK, May 23, 1863.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARACAS, Tuesday, April 28, 1863.

We have had rather exciting and stirring times here since my last. The Government troops met with some disasters and were compelled to capitulate in the province of Coro. They also suffered a momentary disadvantage, which was in some measure subsequently retrieved at Barquisimeto. This emboldened the partisan leaders to attack in force a Government outpost at El Valle, near Caracas, on the 16th of April, where they suffered a defeat and were repulsed, falling back to Cocho, where their General, GUZMAN BLANCO, has established his headquarters.

After this affair, it came to be understood that the Federal leader was anxious to be the mediator for peace between his own General-in-Chief and the Government of Gen. PAEZ, and at the suggestion of the French and English Chargés d'Affaires a meeting was arranged between him and certain officers of the Government. The result of this meeting was an immediate cessation of hostilities, and a preliminary agreement for peace, which has since assumed the dignity of a "treaty," resigned by the Council of State, and transmitted for the approbation of Gen. FALCON.

CARACAS, April 24, 1863.

General JUAN C. FALCON:

MY DEAR BENJAMIN FALCON AND COMRADE:—Some steps have at last been taken to establish peace among our countrymen. I wish I could say it has already been established. It depends entirely upon you to consummate this great blessing.

GUZMAN is the bearer of the agreement entered into by my Secretary-General and himself. I have given it with enthusiasm my approbation. It has also received the high sanction of the Council of State, of the authorities of the city of Caracas and of all the military chiefs of influence or position in our army. Nothing is now wanting but your signature, in order that our country may commence to reap the great benefits secured to it by this inestimable document.

I hope it will thus happen. You cannot be indifferent to the national calamity; neither can you fail to observe that this peaceful means, pointed out by the hand of Providence, is the only one calculated to secure to us government and order with positive stability for the future.

It would be superfluous for me to assure you how gladly and scrupulous I shall be in the execution of my part of the agreement. You cannot doubt my loyalty to our bleeding country. I desire only to secure tranquillity for Venezuela, and rightful and necessary retirement for myself. My happiness will be great, if, within a brief time, I can be permitted to retire to my home, placing the destinies of the Republic in the hands of an intelligent, discreet and patriotic Assembly.

I await your answer with anxiety. If you decide to unite with me in putting an end to this unnatural and calamitous war, nothing can exceed the joy of your obedient friend and servant, J. A. PAEZ.

The following is the Treaty of Peace:

PEDRO JOSE ROJAS, Secretary-General of the Supreme Chief of the Republic, and ANTONIO GUZMAN BLANCO, Commander-in-Chief of the Federal forces acting in these provinces, having assembled by an invitation of the latter party, with the object of coming to an understanding about bringing, by honorable and peaceful means, to a close the present disastrous war, have made the first party in the name of the Supreme Chief of the Republic, and the second party duly authorized by Gen. FALCON, Chief of the Federal Army, an agreement of peace, under the following conditions:

1. The Federal army recognises the Government of the Supreme Chief of the Republic, and of its substitute.

2. An Assembly will meet in Caracas thirty days after the exchange of the ratification of this agreement.

3. Six deputies will be elected for each province. The unsettled state of the Republic not allowing quiet and free elections to take place, it being prudent, on the other hand, to avoid, under the present circumstances, a collision between the two parties, and wishing, finally, to hasten as much as possible the meeting of the Assembly, it is agreed that one-half of the deputies of each province and their substitutes (suplentes) will be elected by the Government, and the other half by Gen. FALCON, in representation of the Federals.

4. The Government of Gen. PAEZ and of its substitute will cease as soon as the Assembly meets, and it will immediately proceed to elect a new Government, as it may deem convenient.

5. Once the new Government is established by the Assembly, it will continue legislating without any restrictions in all the different branches of the public administration.

6. The Government appoints Gen. FALCON first Commander-in-Chief of the army of the Republic, and Gen. GUZMAN second Commander-in-Chief of the same army.

7. No alterations of any importance are to take place in the present position of the armies, in military commandership in any other respect until the Assembly determines what it may think most convenient.

8. Both contracting parties will immediately send orders to the different parts of the Republic for a cessation of hostilities.

9. With the exception of the previous article, which is to be enforced at once, the present agreement will not be carried into execution until it has been approved by the Supreme Chief of the Republic and Gen. JUAN C. FALCON.

PEDRO J. ROJAS.
ANTONIO GUZMAN BLANCO.

PLENIPOTENTIARY "COCHE," April 24, 1863.

Although the precise terms of this agreement have not yet been made public, the substance thereof is very generally understood; and already business of every kind is assuming new life and energy. No one here regards peace as a permanent institution, and therefore the first glimpses of it are sought with avidity, and its first fruits instantly clutched at.

BERNARD BARILI, from your City, is residing here, and is gaining much celebrity in the refined musical circles of this Capital. His many friends at home will be happy to learn that his health is rapidly improving in this truly genial clime, and that he is favored with the patronage of all the best families of Caracas.

He is one of the most gentlemanly and agreeable persons I have ever met with, and his style and execution are the themes of much remark and admiration.

I have recently formed the acquaintance of Señor DON MANUEL RUIZ, also of your City, who is the capitalist and President of the new Gas Company. He is a most amiable and intelligent gentleman. He is a native of Coro, where his parents still reside. He has been in your City, his country house at New-Brighton, N. Y., and his school at Rhinebeck, N. Y., both of which places he speaks of with lively interest. He has been, with New-York other furniture, in the "Charter." one here. It is a novel old pile, and is much visited, standing one of the public squares, with a fountain playing in front of the door, and presenting the most antique appearance. The most of the buildings in Caracas, as I have already informed you, are only one story high, but this has two stories, and being located also on the highest ground in the city, overlooks the entire place and its environings. Its brave old walls withstood the earthquake of 1812, and seem destined to defy the tooth of time for many a long day yet.

"Independence Day" [illegible] April, has with very little of its olden pride. A few [illegible] assembled at the palace of the Government [illegible] guised in gold lace and feathers, but the magnificent regalia of the olden time is fast becoming obsolete, even here. The usual salvos of artillery were fired in the plaza, and all the high officers of State, the foreign Ambassadors, the public corporations and employes marched in procession to the cathedral between a double file of soldiers of the line and militia. After the Te Deum the Excellency the Supreme Chief returned to the Government House where he received the usual felicitations. The Minister of His Majesty the Emperor of Brazil delivered the diplomatic address, the Archbishop spoke in behalf of the clergy, and the Danish Consul-General, Soren Sonnes, on the part of the foreign body. In the evening there was a fine display of fireworks, music, &c.

We are to have a new line of steamers between Liverpool, St. Thomas, Laguayra and Puerto Cabello, leaving Liverpool on the 21st of each month. The [illegible] will [illegible] to 3,200 tons burthen, and will [illegible] Fort Sumter, Captain [illegible] [illegible] Captain [illegible] [illegible] Captain [illegible] [illegible]
